

HOME COMPOSTING MADE EASY with BETTY KEHOE

“Turn your Spoil into Soil”

All you need to know to get started composting. Whether you're completely new to growing, or have some experience and want to learn more, Master composter Betty Kehoe will guide you through composting from garden & kitchen waste, to soil health and how to use compost.

The workshop will cover:

- The principles of successful composting
- Systems for garden waste
- Systems for kitchen waste
- How to use compost
- Problem solving
- Q & A session

Places are limited so book now to reserve your place:

<https://wexfordcoco.libcal.com/event/3914525>

DATE: Saturday 17th September 2022

TIME: 10.30am-12.30pm

LOCATION: Enniscorthy Library

Lymington Rd, Enniscorthy, Co. Wexford, Y21 AD92

Map: <https://goo.gl/maps/VkTBuCjztDXSDRJz8>

Betty Kehoe is a Master Composter and has been involved in composting training for many years. Betty has worked with many groups throughout the south east, including Tidy Towns, Community Gardens, GIY groups and householders.

This series of free public talks & workshops is part of the Reimagining Enniscorthy public art & community decarbonisation project, creating a local ecology network for people-led climate action.

ABOUT THE PROJECT

Reimagining Enniscorthy is a collaborative, place-based response to the climate crisis and a creative exploration of Enniscorthy as Wexford's pilot Decarbonisation Zone. It aims to create a local ecology network through a multi-strand community growing, biodiversity and decarbonisation initiative that will connect the public and communal green space of the town with a network of private gardens and the agricultural hinterland surrounding Enniscorthy.

The project explores our relationship to land and impact on the environment through communal activities and shared experiences of making and cultivation, and will bring together a diverse mix of community groups and creatives through workshops, events and public art outcomes throughout the year, to raise awareness, encourage local participation and support the evolution of this ecology network.

It is a testing ground for community engagement where planting, food-growing, building and skills-sharing schemes will connect with art and craft practices to creatively engage with the green infrastructure of the town and the local landscape. Reimagining Enniscorthy will create a public space for discussion around questions of food and biodiversity, regenerative growing practices and sustainable agriculture, and explore the daily actions that connect us locally with the systems of production and supply that feed into larger ecological and climate concerns.

It is about building resilient, sustainable communities that feel informed and empowered to make meaningful changes toward people-led climate action.

Get in touch at hello@reimaginingenniscorthy.com

Supported by Wexford County Council's Environment & Climate Action Team and Culture Team, Creative Ireland Programme, Wexford Arts Centre, the Per Cent for Art Scheme, Sustainable Enniscorthy, and the 3 Counties Energy Agency.